

The Sultan Is Not Happy.

We reprint this morning an interesting letter from the special correspondent of the European edition of the HERALD in Constantinople. An American traveller has, it appears, dared to look upon the Sultan through a pair of eyeglasses, whereupon His Imperial Majesty waxed very wroth. Then, the cholera is raging. An old gypsy woman once prophesied that Abdul Hamid would become Sultan and die of that dread disease, wherefore His Majesty is filled with fear. Worse than all, the European Powers are estranged from the Porte, and the Sultan does not know what will become of him after the Armenian inquiry is ended.
