

The World's Work.

To the Editor of The World:

I am very much interested in your graphic series of papers on Wall street now running in The World. These, I think, are calculated to do much good, and I wish to thank you for publishing them.

I was also much interested in the striking cartoon relating to the Armenian outrages, which appeared in The World a few Sundays ago. Such cartoons are calculated to do an immense amount of good in an educational way. Quite an interest is being awakened throughout New England through the efforts of the Union for Practical Progress, which, acting on a suggestion of the Hon. James P. Bryce, M. P., is circulating petitions, with the expectation of securing several million signatures, praying the English Government to insist upon a European Governor for Armenia in the name of humanity. Mr. Bryce thinks that the moral sentiment thus expressed by America will have a very positive influence in England. Rev. Frank Buffington Vrooman has been appointed by the National Union for Practical Progress to act as lecturer, and has met with great success in large public meetings held in the Old South Church, of this city, and in several other New England cities. I trust The World will further agitate this question in the name of humanity, progress and a better civilization.

P. S.—I inclose one of the petitions which the U. P. is circulating, and to which it has already secured the signatures of a number of Judges of the Supreme Court and quite a number of our leading statesmen and other prominent citizens.
